Before renting a Recreational Vehicle

If planning to rent an RV near your house or in a different part of the country, look at a list of recreational vehicle rental companies and websites which can help you. Some companies have many rental places so you can start your trip in one country and drop off your rental in another. First consult the Yellow Pages or check out our list of recreational vehicle dealers. If you still need help finding an appropriate rental company in a specific part of Canada, you can contact the Recreational Vehicle Dealers Association (RVDA) of Canada.

RV Packages Which are Provided

The most popular recreational vehicle models for renting are Motorhomes, but some companies provide folding camper trailers, truck campers and travel trailers. Housekeeping packages are commonly available that includes dishes, pots, bed linen, pans, and so forth. Televisions and VCR's, extra mileage, travel to the far North and Winter-ready recreational vehicles would incur some extra fees. Complete recreational vehicle operation instructions will be provided before prior to starting your journey. However experienced drivers must find adjusting to the different weight, size and height of the RV relatively straight forward.

Why Checking With Your Insurance is Important

Before renting, it is essential to check with your insurance if you are covered for the recreational vehicle you would like. Several companies have minimum age requirements, or you may need to arrange extra and separate insurance cover from the rental company.
