RV Dealers Winnipeg - The objective of a luxury recreational vehicle is to provide its users with the utmost amount of comfort possible. Although there is no definite guideline as to what makes a recreational vehicle a "luxury RV," there are some features which are common. The floors are often made of wood, and the countertops are made of granite. There are slide-outs for additional space as well as various lavish trim options. Some of the more elaborate RV's have entertainment units with flat screen televisions, satellite dishes, and other electronic devices. Although travel trailers and fifth wheels can offer some of the same features, it is usually the diesel pushers that serve as luxury recreational vehicle platforms.

Since the line that divides regular trailers and motorhomes with luxury RV's is not clearly defined, several options which can be considered "luxurious" could be found inside more affordable models. Though slide-outs can be found in trailers and motorhomes of various price ranges, the luxury models are more likely to include them. It is difficult to find a recreational vehicle that has more than one or two slide-outs. It is common for luxury diesel pusher motorhomes to have two rear slide-outs in the bedroom as well as two slide-outs in the living room. A dramatic increase in floorspace can be accomplished by using these slide-outs.

Several entertainment options are available when selecting a luxury RV, including TVs within the main living space, kitchen and bedroom. A multi-speaker sound system which provides audio into the main area and bedroom is also rather typical. Diesel pushers are normally equipped with an integrated backup camera system, that usually includes a few cameras. This particular system can be designed so that when the turn signal is activated, the camera would switch to the correct side to allow the driver to have a better visual prior to changing lanes.

Another way that a luxury recreational vehicle can be differentiated from a regular recreational vehicle is by its fixtures. Full sized baths or spacious showers, as well as a flushing action, real toilet are considered common inside a luxury RV. Though less common, it is also possible for a luxury recreational vehicle to provide separate half-bath, as well as a traditional full or three-quarters bath. The counters are typically made out of granite or solid acrylic rather than the laminate countertops which are found in nearly all recreational vehicles and the sinks in the bathroom and the kitchen are usually full-sized.
